Boone and Blowing Rock offer cold-weather family fun

The towns of Blowing Rock and Boone are marvels in winter.

There truly is a “blowing rock” and this rock face has wind gusts so mighty that it is the only place on earth where it is rumored to snow upside down. This wonder and many more await your family a short drive from the Asheville area.

for the Blowing Rock Chamber of Commerce.

Blowing Rock hosts Winterfest, a four-day festival complete with a frigid Polar Plunge and a steaming Chili Challenge. The event kicks off Jan. 27 with Winter-Feast, showcasing the area’s restaurants. On Jan. 28, shop the area and enjoy a concert. And on Jan. 29, experience the Winterfest Polar Plunge, Chili Cook Off, Wine Tasting and Auction and more.

“We have something for all ages from the kids activities to game shows to the ice carvers,” Rogers says. She adds that there will be free hayrides and free hot chocolate (as well as free snow).

Billed as North Carolina’s oldest travel attraction, the actual “Blowing Rock” is not just a pretty cliff face. Featuring a walk with a garden waterfall and observation tower, the site is open on weekends in January and February (weather permitting). Winter transforms the garden, cliff and falls, painting a white expression on the landscape.

Get some relief from the cold with an indoor diversion at the Mystery Hill, which has been around since 1948. Inside the "crooked house," watch balls roll uphill and experiment with other uncanny phenomena in this place where gravity seems to have taken a holiday. The Hall of Mystery lets children experiment with physics and math. Kids can study bubbles, holograms and mirrors, and learn while having fun.

Also on site is the Appalachian Heritage Museum and a Native Artifacts Collection, including 50,000 arrowheads from 23 states.

Mystery Hill is open all year. Children age 4 and younger are free.

Snow sports

The Blowing Rock and Boone area is flush with ski resorts, and most of them have special children's programs and lessons. Most lesson packages include equipment and helmet rental and slope tickets.

Appalachian Ski Mountain's Skiwee and Cruiser Camp programs are intended to teach beginning snowboarders (ages 7-12) and skiers (ages 4-10).

Sugar Mountain Resort bills itself as North Carolina's largest ski/snowboard area with 20 slopes, eight lifts and a tubing park.

Ski Beech is the highest ski area on the East Coast at a 5,506 feet in elevation. A ski school and youth learning center are on site, as is an ice skating rink. For parents with much younger children, The Beech Mountain Resort Nursery provides care for infants and toddlers ages 6 months-3 years. Reservations are required and must be made one day in advance.

For those who prefer horizontal winter fun, Hawksnest Snow Tubing offers the longest snow tubing runs in North Carolina. It is also one of the few places to go zip lining in the winter months. Children must be 3 years old to snow tube.
